

HomeNewsSportWeatheriPlayerHome | UK | World | Business | Culture | Politics | Health | Tech | InDepth |MoreBBC Verify | ClimatePolitics | Parliaments | Brexit

Green deputy leader defends comments on Leeds rabbi

Sam Francis

Political reporter

3 October 2025

Green Party deputy leader Mothin Ali has defended his criticism of a Leeds-based Rabbi and Israeli Defence Force (IDF) reservist.

Rabbi Zecharia Deutsch had accused Ali of playing a key role in the wave of threats that drove him from his home.

Green leader Zach Polanski has been under pressure to take action but is standing by his deputy.

Speaking to the BBC, Ali called for Rabbi Deutsch and "anyone who participates in a genocide" to be investigated by the police. Ali described the death of two Jewish people in an attack at a synagogue in Manchester on Thursday as "an absolute tragedy" and expressed solidarity with the Jewish community.

Labour just handmaidens to Reform, says Green leader

3 October 2025

Councillor elected Green Party joint deputy leader

2 September 2025

University security stepped up after threats to rabbi

13 February 2024

In September, The Times newspaper reported that Rabbi Deutsch left his Leeds home under advice from West Yorkshire police following a deluge of threats linked to his work with the IDF.

Speaking to the Times, Rabbi Deutsch blamed Ali, who is a member of Leeds City Council, for playing a key role in amplifying the attacks through his posts on social media.

The Times reported that Rabbi Deutsch had been working as a student chaplain at Leeds University at the time of the 7 October attacks in 2023.

An Israeli citizen, he was called up as a reservist for a tour of duty with the Israel Defence Forces. Rabbi Deutsch reportedly acted as a guard for food and ammunition convoys entering Gaza during his service.

In one video on a now private social media account, Ali said: "Leeds University should be protecting its students against this kind of animal.

"You should be protecting people. You should be protecting students from this kind of animal, because if he's willing to kill people over there, how do you know he's not going to kill your students over here?"

Ali has not disputed the content of the video when asked by the BBC.

He said: "I think anyone who participates in a genocide is a danger and should be investigated by the police.

"I don't believe that British people, people who enjoy the freedoms of this country, should be able to go into a foreign state and participate in genocide."

Separately, Ali apologised for the "short sightedness" of a post he made the day after the 7 October attacks, where he said "indigenous people have the right to fight back" and called for an end to "white supremacist European settler colonialism".

Speaking to the BBC, Ali argued he had not been referencing the Hamas attack on Israeli civilians - killing about 1,200 people and taking 251 hostages.

He reiterated that the post referred to principles "enshrined in international law" and was not directly linked to the events of that day.

Defending his position, Ali said he had been elected as deputy leader by more than 5,000 Green Party members who "put their trust in me because they recognise that I work for our community as a whole".

"Politicians have a responsibility in how they communicate, but also the media have a responsibility in how they communicate," he added.

"We shouldn't conflate what's happening in Israel to British Jews here - I think that is irresponsible.

"We need to express our solidarity with British Jews in this country, we need to express our solidarity with all marginalised communities in this country."

Ali became a councillor for Gipton and Harehills ward in May 2024 and immediately hit the headlines for his victory speech, labelling his election a "win for the people of Gaza" before shouting "Allahu Akbar", meaning "God is the greatest" in Arabic.

He later apologised for "any upset" caused.

Green Party leader Zack Polanski stood by Ali in an interview on the morning of the party's annual conference, saying his views needed to be seen in context that "this Rabbi went off to fight for the IDF, he was actively recruiting for people to engage in a genocide".

Speaking on BBC Radio 4's Today programme Polanski said Ali was right to apologise, but he would "defend his right to be annoyed and upset by what is happening in Palestine".

"We need to have a nuanced conversation about what is a genocide and talk about what is actually happening as opposed to the words that people use."

Politics Essential

Top political analysis in your inbox every day

Sign up for our Politics Essential newsletter to keep up with the inner workings of Westminster and beyond.

Related topics

Green Party (England and Wales)

Top stories

LIVE Andrew Mountbatten-Windsor arrested and in custody on suspicion of misconduct in public office

132k viewing

Police statement in full after Andrew arrest

1 hour ago

Vehicles arrive at Sandringham Estate in Norfolk

25 minutes ago

More to explore

Why there's no quick fix in sight for the

'Trump pulls support for Chagos' and 'Britain faces '1936 moment''

Hamas is reasserting control in Gaza despite

problem of dazzling

Cornish village endures 50 consecutive days of rain

 Weather

Yes there is a right way to stack the dishwasher. Here are the 5 rules

its heavy losses

'Smiling' fossil discovered on Holy Island

Musk cuts Starlink access for Russian forces - giving Ukraine an edge at the front

Vinicius: Eight years at Real Madrid, 20 cases of alleged racist abuse

 Sport

Royal Watch: Get the latest royal stories and analysis with Sean Coughlan's weekly newsletter

Most read

- 1 Police statement in full after Andrew arrest
- 2 BBC plans David Attenborough celebration for 100th birthday
- 3 Detained Briton describes life in Iran jail to BBC hours before sentencing
- 4 Why there's no quick fix in sight for the problem of dazzling headlights
- 5 Starmer appoints Romeo as head of UK civil service
- 6 Pupils with SEND to have support reviewed after primary, leaked plans suggest
- 7 Australian presenter apologises for drinking before slurred Olympics report
- 8 'Smiling' fossil discovered on Holy Island
- 9 Yes there is a right way to stack the dishwasher. Here are the 5 rules
- 10 'Trump pulls support for Chagos' and 'Britain faces '1936 moment''

BBC News Services

On your mobile

On smart speakers

Get news alerts

Contact BBC News

Best of the BBC

Lord Sugar's hopefuls jet off to Hong Kong

 iPlayer

+ Watchlist

Mackenzie Crook's new whimsical comedy

 iPlayer

+ Watchlist

Dragons' Den is back with new faces and bigger stakes

 iPlayer

+ Watchlist

Jack Thorne's bold retelling of a dystopian classic

 iPlayer

+ Watchlist

HomeWeatherBitesizeFoodNewsiPlayerCBBCSportSoundsCBeebiesTerms of UseAbout the BBCPrivacy PolicyCookiesAccessibility HelpParental Guidance

Contact the BBC

Make an editorial complaint

BBC emails for you

Copyright © 2026 BBC. The BBC is not responsible for the content of external sites. Read about our approach to external linking.